FREE AIR

Make the most of the atmosphere about you! It is the original home of all things great. Every material accomplishment of note was first a castle in the air—its glories visible only to its creator. Thoreau has said that the building of castles in the air is the most valuable form of architecture, for once our imagination has conjured up the glittering edifice, comes the urge to make it a reality. It may be set down as an axiom that those who build no castles in the air will never build any other kind.

Every noble achievement is merely a dream come true. To scoff at the builder of air castles is to ridicule imagination—and without imagination there can be no ambition.

CHANGES PROPOSED AT COURT HOUSE

County Board Asks Plans for Remodeling, Then Adjourns Till Fall.

Supervisors started talk Wednesday of putting a fire-proof floor over the vaults in the register of deeds office in notice of the board. A discussion of the present court house arose until it was suggested an annex be built. Then the supervisors talked of remodeling the building and having the annex built. Some one might have suggested a new court house, all because of a report on the condition of the floor over the register of deeds office by Supervisor W. S. Farnig, Beloit.

Supervisor W. S. Farnig declared that when the metal ceiling was being placed in the court house basement rooms it was discovered there was no protection over the record books.

"Certainly the county needs to protect its records," declared Supervisor E. D. McGowan.

Then others pointed out the need of more room and the possibility of using the vaults in the third floor for offices. The annex was suggested and at the end the building committee was authorized to employ aid in obtaining plans for remodeling the building with the view of obtaining more office and vault space.

"It is but a matter of time until the building will have to be altered," declared Supervisor Farnig.

Concomitantly at the Wisconsin tax commission for not paying its share in the expenses of the office of L. A. Taylor. The tax commission presented a bill for $535 for the use of the new building for the county. The state owes the county approximately $200 for tax work. So the board ordered that the difference between the bills be determined at the county pay that sum and no more. Paying expenses of the tax office for Rock county always excites the supervisors, who hold the state should pay its just bills.

The tax commission got $50,000 recently and let's get our claim in before they spend it all," urged Supervisor Simon Smith, Beloit supervisor.

Prize for Supt. Cullen.

A vote of thanks for improvements in buildings and livestock at the county farm was passed by the supervisors to Superintendent and Mrs. Archie Cullen. This was brought up by Supervisor C. O. Grogan, who said, "The county has reason to be proud of the advances and good work done on the farm."

Chairman W. W. Dalton was allowed $25 for signing of county documents. He requested it be left at $15 but the supervisors ruled the work was worth a raise.

Lawrence Whitte, Edgerton, former lawyer of the county board assembly, addressed the board. He declared that his experience on the county board, which was the start of his political career, carried the most pleasant memories.

It is on the board, one meets the flower of the county and no other political experience afforded me such satisfaction as the period when I was a member of this board," stated the Edgerton man.

The board adjourned, subject to call, late in the afternoon. A motion to set the next meeting date for July 11 was withdrawn. The finding of the new sanatorium early will largely determine the next meeting date.

TAKES THE REAL ISSUE IN THE STATE

It matters not what the factions of the republican party may write into the platforms, the real issue, the one that makes itself, is taxation. The increase in population in the state in 20 years has been a little less than 30 per cent. The increase in cost of government has been $50 per cent for Wisconsin. It cost $3,900,000 in 1901; it costs $38,300,000 now. When Governor Scofield was running he was hammered on all sides by noisy demagogues because the expenses of the state had been raised to the neighborhood of $4,000,000. Yet we are asked to give unqualified support to a governor whose administration has spent $33,300,000 without batting an eye.
Here in Rock county we have $50,000 of unpaid taxes returned. It is almost unprecedented. Farmers cannot stand the gaff which has prodded up the taxes to the pitch they are now. City taxes are as bad. The very idea of raising $956,000 for various purposes in Janesville caused a revolution in city government. 51 per cent of the amount raised for local purposes was spent for city administration. These figures go all along the line. They are growing larger as the resources of the taxpayer lessen and ability to pay dwindles. We have gone tax mad. It permeates every part of the government; state and national; county and city and town. It is time to stop it and to demand that the elected representatives really cut expenses, not attempt to bunco the people with camouflage.

A writer in Leslie's sounds this warning about taxation:

Discussion of the subject of taxation was never less academic, nor more timely, practical and urgent than it is today. Few of us have realized how the tax-ridden American people are everywhere the tax-gatherer is calling into their substance, diminishing their means of subsistence and depriving them of the sinews of enterprise. The consequence is that all over the land the taxpayers are murmuring and in a mood of revolt against a condition for which inefficient public servants are held largely responsible.

Statisticians tell us that for every family of five in Massachusetts the tax total averages $375, and in New York State $355 per year. This is a staggering sum. Many will term this the peak of plunder under the guise of law. The situation in several of the other states, if not quite so bad, is plentifully depressing, and to add to the blackness of the prospect it is promised that, in most sections of the country, the taxes will be increased and not lessened during the next few years. In our cities local taxes have been bloating rapidly since pre-war days. The amount levied on property in New York City is now $50 more per family than in 1914; in Chicago $70 more; and in Philadelphia nearly $100 more. But that sort of thing has not been going on in the larger cities alone. This showing is typical of the smaller towns, also, census figures disclosing in them a large increase in the expense of administering their affairs. Villages and rural districts suffer similarly and their taxpayers have as good cause to complain as have the residents in more populous communities.

Abuses of taxation have reached the dimensions of an epidemic. It may be argued that a greater part of the public obligations of our country, districts, cities, states and nation were unvoluntarily or partially contracted and the payment of interest and principal of these cannot be avoided. So far as such an assertion is true (as it is in the case of our national government, which had to fight a great war) no blame can be attached to the creators of taxes. But it is a notorious fact that those who legislate for the people too often ignore sound business principles and the public weal. Too much politics, too much catering to special interests and too much initiating of unnecessary public projects account for a vast deal of the present oppressive levies.

The heavy taxes on the course of business is so adverse that an anti-high-tax movement may be among the possibilities. A national taxpayers' union would have enough power to make Congress, legislatures, boards of supervisors and city fathers more careful as to the imposts they inflict upon the people.

One is pleased that the husband of Lady Astor—his name is of no consequence—accompanied her to America.

IN THE SUNSET OF LIFE

When the sun of years was close to the edge of the sky, Janesville's loved citizen, J. L. Ford hastened into the greater light. For 70 years he has been along the streets of Janesville. He came when the village was growing out of its swaddling clothes into the largeness of the city with a little startled by the sudden transformation. From that time to this he has been a part of Janesville. Time is a destroyer. It is also a healer. Gathered scars along the path in the end only instigate reminiscence. These may be cheerful, bring laughter and smiles or be sour and repulsive. To our neighbor and friend, J. L. Ford, the way to the end of the road called for hearty cheer and happiness. So we bid him farewell as he fades into the distance and hope all is well with him in this greatest adventure of mankind.

What the Coal Strike Costs

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—Government intervention in the coal strike, or some official action to relieve the situation, was promised "when the situation became acute." Or when the public begins to feel the pinch of the coal shortage. There are experts who contend that the public was pinched from the moment the strike was threatened, and such of these experts as are not engaged on one side or the other of the wage controversy are now busy computing the costs of the strike. Their figures are at once interesting and startling.

The average citizen probably goes his serene way without a thought that the coal strike is hurting him until suddenly he finds he cannot get coal, or must pay a higher price, and it is at this average citizen that the experts are aiming their broadsides of statistics. Thus David L. Wing, who has studied the coal problem for years, says:

"Since every cost or waste in coal production, whether of natural resources of man power or of capital, must eventually be borne by the coal consumer; it is not enough for the man in the street merely to read the news of threatened strikes, grumble over high prices and talk of protesting and summary legislation. He must realize that this is a problem which he too must cooperate in solving, by bringing about an intelligent public opinion.

From 1910 to 1915, strikes caused 10.5 per cent of the idle days in the bituminous coal industry. The figure for the year 1919 was still larger. Exact compilations of strike costs are impossible. The bureau of labor statistics long since abandoned efforts in that line.

However, in the case of a basic industry such as coal, the statisticians have more informing data. First of all, they point out that a total cessation of coal production and exhaustion of coal supplies would result in the complete industrial and commercial paralysis of the nation; famine and death would speedily stalk the land and chaos ensue. Government itself would break down and civilization totter and fall. That is the possible ultimate cost of a coal strike and is beyond reckoning in money. Nothing like that would ever be permitted to happen, of course, but the picture is one to be borne in mind.

Getting down to dollars and cents, the first item is the wage loss of the mine workers. If 600,000 miners are idle as a result of the strike, their loss each day totals at least $4,200,000 on the basis of their average earnings per day worked in 1920. Next comes the loss in wages to workers outside the coal industry, on whom idleness is forced by reason of the strike. Thousands of railroad workers were laid off the first week of the strike, and the number will be added to as the strike continues or becomes more active. Other thousands of workers who handle coal between the railroad terminal and the consumer's bin will have idleness thrust upon them, and passing from them to the workers in plants that cannot operate without coal, yet another wage loss item is chalked up.

In the early days of a strike, only the heaviest estimates can be made as to its direct effect on other industries, for reports of shutdowns are incomplete and inaccurate. It may be significant to note, however, that a large steel mill in Youngstown, O., that has been closed down for a long period, was scheduled to resume work the first week in April and did not do so because of the strike and threatened coal shortage, and that other large steel plants in the Pittsburgh district were closing down or reducing their scale of operations within a few days after the strike was called.

To the wage loss of all these workers is to be added the productive value of their labor had they been employed, for every man at work produces something of value to society. Naturally, each man's productive value depends on the nature of his work, and to arrive at this item—the cost of the coal strike on man's estimate—or guess—is as dependable as that of the next. Perhaps the most illuminating conception of the value of time when usefully employed is conveyed in the old proverbial aphorism, "Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes; no reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

But every member of society, business man, professional man, farmer, workman or parasite idler, must share in the loss occasioned when a day's wage is not earned, and hence cannot be spent and the product of a day's labor has not been realized. Everybody has seen a town or small city, largely dependent on one business or factory, "go dead" when that establishment suspends for a period; and a like denuding effect must be felt in every section of the country when so casual an industry as coal suspends operations or is only partially productive.

This denuding effect, moreover, according to economists, began with the first serious threat of the coal strike. They point out that, with the opening of the present year, there was a general determination to pull the country out of the slough of business depression. Men in all lines were planning to get under full swing again, and perhaps to extend or expand operations. New enterprises were projected, bankers were more optimistic, credits were becoming easier, capital was seeking work to do instead of a hole in which to hide. The road to prosperity seemed open again.

Then came the controversy between the coal miners and operators, with a practical certainty of a strike on April 1.

"Better wait and see what happens" instead of "Up and at 'em!" became the watchword, and there again is found an indefinite but none the less real loss of time that is to be added to the cost of the coal strike.

Lost profits to coal operators, lost freight revenues to railroads (an enormous sum in the aggregate); lost profits to all middle-men and dealers who handle coal, and lost profits to all industries and businesses affected adversely by a real threatened coal famine, are other items in the total bill which the country must pay because the men who own the coal and the men who dig it would not set their house in order before March 31.

It will be a long time before anyone will have an estimate as to what this total cost is in cold, hard cash, but one thing has been made certain already—it will be enough! Optimists among members of congress and other leaders in public affairs agree, however, that whatever the bill is it will not be too much if it averts the public unit measures are taken to avoid similar debacles in the future.

conference was to be political. It's filled with politics and fireworks.

The Elk Horn Independent, one of the best edited and printed weekly newspapers of the state, is celebrating its 70th birthday. Succeeding the Western Star, a modest sheet, established in 1846, the Elk Horn paper was reestablished in 1852 and from that time to the present has never missed an issue. Numerous changes in ownership were made until F. M. Eames acquired an interest in 1899, and the Eames' have been in the ownership since that time. The Independent has printed in its files the story of the weekly history of the county of Walworth. No part of community life can become so invaluable as its newspaper and few deserve better of a community than the Elk Horn Independent.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE PURPOSE

We could see no ray of light and no hope to lead us on.
When the heavy blow had fallen the last shred of faith seemed gone.
Yet a richer life is ours by the burdens we have known.
And we've come to see God's purpose through the long years that have flown.

Were our lives by one day counted, that black day and taken back, we would have cherished in disaster seemed to fall.

But the days of men are many and the passing of the years
May be needed ere the purpose of a bitter loss appears.

Not today we see the wisdom of the hurt which we must bear.
Now the way seems dark and dreary and no light is shining there.

But God's purpose glows beneath it, in a way you cannot know until you've reached your goal.
When the years have smoothed your sorrow, you shall learn its better tale.

CONTENTMENT

Contentment has no fixed abiding place.
No favorite haunt for weary men to seek;
Her tongue is one which all may learn to speak,
For beauty sometimes finds the saddest folk.

The humblest home may know her gentle grace;
She has been found upon the mountain peak
And in the valleys left her lovely trace.
Blessing alike the glorious and the meek.

She has sat down with grateful hearts at night
And bowed her head in thanks for simple fare;
Glad for the peaceful calm which nestled there,
Her smile has made the toiler's cabin bright.

Where luxury is sought she never dwells,
Though high or low the place, Contentment Lives.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON

A select group gathered in a fashionable New York home listened to a popular author.

"The Danger of Chivalry," and those who attended immediately decided that chivalry is dead. Several of them rushed into print.

In other words, chivalry has ceased to chiv and the situation is alarming. Of course, the blame for this is laid on the flappers. The flappers are very handy. It seems that we can blame everything on them. Having discarded helpings, they cannot fight back.

But if they keep on blaming everything, from the flapping of a wing to the unsettled financial situation in Europe, on the flappers, people will soon begin feeling sorry for them.

As for chivalry being dead, where did this highbrow author get that stuff?

Twice in the past week we have noticed men get up and give their street car seats to ladies. Both gentlemen lifted their hats. In both cases the ladies plumped themselves down as though the seat belonged to them originally, and it either of them said, "Thank you, very personable."

Chivalry still has a kick in it. It seems to thrive under the most unfavorable conditions.

The other night a gunman held a lady up and relieved her of a considerable roll of bills. He asked that the purse was the very personable. Chivalry still has a kick in it. It seems to thrive under the most unfavorable conditions.

And still they say chivalry is dead. Another case of modern chivalry is noted in one of the flappers who is a passenger on the street car conductor, saying: "They are a lot of eggs on this car. I got a seat, but my wife had to stand up all the way."

The death of chivalry, like the one-time demise of Mark Twain, is greatly exaggerated.

How sweet and brotherly is the conversation of nations until they begin to talk about money.

Woman with baby cub helps rob Chicago apartments. Well, they have to carry the loot away somehow, don't they? Well!

The Episcopal church is to eliminate the word "obey" from the marriage service. (The wives eliminated it from married life some time ago.)

Who's Who Today

REAR ADMIRAL DAVID W. TAYLOR.
A special board of admirals is now studying the best means of equipping the U. S. Navy ships ordered scrapped in compliance with the terms of the naval limitation treaty.

The original amount spent on the vessels to be eliminated is over $500,000. The board seeks to realize as much as possible on that amount.

The head of the board is Rear Admiral David W. Taylor, chief constructor of the navy.

Admiral Taylor is known as an expert and author on naval construction. He won recognition from his graduation from Annapolis in 1885 by excelling the highest class record made there up to that time.

After another similar record at the Royal College, he was made a captain in 1904 and became a rear admiral in 1917. He received a gold medal from the British Institution of Naval Architects in 1918 for his paper on ship-shaped stream forms, the first American so honored.

In 1899 he constructed and still has charge of the first experimental tank ever built in the U. S. at the Gunpowder and Arsenals, and is now an expert in a suit growing out of the Hawke-Olympic collision in 1911.

He has been chief constructor of the navy and chief of the bureau of construction and repair since 1914. He is the author of "The Design of Ships and Screw Propulsion" and "Speed and Power of Ships."

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

April 20, 1882.—The seven-year-old daughter of August Lueths fell in the river at Monterey at noon today, as she was coming home for dinner from the Genoa school in the afternoon. This afternoon there had been no concerted action to find her body. "The World" was presented at the Myers theater last night and will be seen a second time tonight.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

April 20, 1892.—Edward F. Carpenter, Archie Reid and John S. Anderson have purchased 350 acres on the west side of the river, just opposite Crystal Springs, and will quarry the excellent limestone found there. They will use the river to carry the stone to the city. The Hanson place is to be bonded for an additional $12,000 working capital.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

April 20, 1902.—It is reported that unskilled labor will be in great demand in this section this summer, and that high prices will be paid for it. Prices on meat have advanced two cents a pound. Various cuts range from 15 to 20 cents, with porterhouse steak at 18 cents. Sliced ham is 20 cents a pound.

TEN YEARS AGO

April 20, 1912.—May 1, 2 and 3 have been set as Clean-Up days for the entire city. Dr. M. A. Cunningham has charge of the campaign. Work on paving North Main street, from Milwaukee street to Fourth avenue, will start next week by the City Engineer. The cause of the slump of interest in the newly-founded Scout movement is being investigated.

CAN A MAN GAS HIMSELF?

Besides accidental and intentional poisonings by illuminating gas, there are many other sources of carbon monoxide poisoning to which we are exposed nowadays. Nearly every one knows something of the danger from carbon monoxide poisoning from the exhaust of an automobile or other gasoline engine running in a closed place. Men working about blast and coke furnaces are often gassed with carbon monoxide. Leaky gas stoves, gas lamps or mantles, gas stoves without flue connection, or a coal stove or furnace with leaky flue; or a coal stove with fire banked and drafts shut off for the night may give off enough of this colorless, tasteless gas to wipe out life.

Carbon monoxide displaces the oxygen in the hemoglobin of the blood, thus preventing the tissues and cells from getting their necessary supply of oxygen.

One who is being gassed yawns, grows sleepy and weary, has a dull headache with a feeling of pressure on the forehead, perhaps some dizziness and nausea. Confusion and unconsciousness follow if rescue is not prompt. A peculiar sensation of loss of power in the knees, which causes the victim to become "frozen" in his tracks and to fall to the ground, is characteristic in many instances.

When exposure is prolonged or frequent, and the amount of carbon monoxide absorbed is very slight, the victim may develop a peculiar lassitude or weariness, headache, palpitation, and poor memory or loss of former mental alertness. Disturbances of digestion, impaired appetite, constipation for food, and general weakness, nervousness and irritability of gas employees and others whose occupation favors exposure to carbon monoxide in small amounts.

These carbon monoxide symptoms are strikingly like the symptoms of tobacco poisoning. Indeed it is quite possible that the symptoms seen in acute and chronic tobacco poisoning are chiefly attributable to the carbon monoxide produced and inhaled with the smoke, coupled with the contributory effect of the slower, more shallow breathing which accompanies the act of smoking.

Dinner Stories

"Aha!" exclaimed a man on Main street, "see a pin and pick it up, and all the day you'll have good luck!" and as he bent over to pick it up, his hat fell into the mud, his glasses dropped from his nose and smashed.

The man who had struck one of those rare not-so-very-prohibition parties and didn't want to leave it had made two unsuccessful attempts to get into the clubhouse, the third time negotiating it like a ferry going into a strange ship. He dropped his nickel in.

"Hello, hello, hello," he cried, "Say, Miss Line's Busy, Missa, good girl. Hello, whassas, Line's busy? Aw right."

He staggered out. "Lord knows I tried to get her anyway," he muttered.

ANTI-FLY CAMPAIGN OPENED IN STATE

Madison.—Anti-fly warfare was opened in Wisconsin by the state board of health Wednesday with its printing of large colored posters for public display, urging that flies be exterminated as far as possible this spring. Every precaution against the fly should be taken by people of the state in addition to carrying on a vigorous campaign against the pest, the WILLY HAS GONE BEFORE. George Morton goes to work at the house of a hunter, a rich man, when he finds out that his property is a horse. George becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job acts as groom to Sylvia Planter who she rides. He falls in love with her. He is driven from the place and seeks an education, goes to Princeton and meets Dally, a tutor, gets a place on the football team and aids his college to win from Harvard. Dally's sister is very kind to George, who at her home meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing. George gets a job with a brokerage office, makes a success, and in college secures a high social position. Dally still loves him, but he is showing preference for a classmate who proves to be a scoundrel. Dally's people George goes to war. On his return he enters into business, finds Dally is a crook. He and Dally are shocked to discover that Dally's wife has been married to Sylvia one morning. That afternoon George finds Sylvia and in a moment of confusion he takes her in his arms to be discovered by Dally, who demands money as a price for his silence. He makes threats, Sylvia and George part and he returns to his old tutor, George Dally, at Princeton.

"I see now," Lambert put in, "that is the only way in which one with self-respect can look down on lesser men." George laughed aloud. "An ally that can't escape! Driggs is a witness. We'll hold that fine democracy of the Argentine over your head forever." "You see," Wadsworth drawled, "that was bound to fail, because it was based on the ridiculous assumption that every man that fought was good and great." George said, "we're commencing to find out why we went to war—to appreciate the world and our own astigmatism." As they walked back to the little house in Dickinson Street, Dally tried to express something. "I guess," he managed, "that I'll have to call it square, George." "I'm glad," George said, quickly, "but you must give some of the credit to Lambert, Dally's sister." He smiled happily, wistfully. "You know she's the most useful socialist of you all." After a time he said under his breath, "There are some things I never dreamed of being able to repay you, sir. For instance—this feeling that one is walking home."

(Continued from Yesterday.) "I climbed," he ended, "So others can, and less selfishly and more. I tell you, it's the only really true way."

"You're always right, great man," Wadsworth drawled, "but we mustn't forget you climbed from fundamentalism. That's education—the teaching of the fundamentals."

"It means an equal chance for everybody," George said, "and then, by god, we won't have the world held back by those who permit the congenitally unsound to set the pace for the healthy. We'll take care of the congenitally unsound."

He turned to Dally. "And your excitement, Dally, has got to realize that you can't make this world sane through makeshifts, or all at once, but with foresight, it can be done. You've raised a devil with me, ever since I was a sub-breastman about service and the unsound and the virtue of soiled clothing. Now raise the devil with somebody else about the virtue of social service and clean clothes. This education must start in the schools."

We may be able to force it into public schools through the legislature; but in Princeton and the other great universities it is to be confined to the elite and that's hard; that, in a way, is up to you and other gentle sectarians like you. And your clubs have got to stand in some form—everywhere, in only as objectives of physical and moral conduct and clean living, and from the world. Only the elite."

"Driggs! If you want to go among the time-servers, to stand alone for the people, perhaps for people yet unborn—"

"For a long time," Wadsworth said, "I've been looking for something I could really want to do. I rather fancy you've found it for me, George. I want to climb to the heights, but not to the heights we once talked about, at your unhealthy picnic, but to the furthest heights of all, which are guarded by selfishness, servility, sin—past which people have to be led."

Squibs cried out enthusiastically. "And from which you can look down with a clear conscience on the climbers to whom you will have pointed out the path."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

Breakfast: Coddish Cakes, Toast, Rhubarb Sauce, Cookies, Coffee. Luncheon: Cheese and Celery, Whole Wheat Bread and Butter, Canned or Fresh Pineapple, Cup Cakes, Tea. Dinner: Potatoes of Chicken, Boiled Rice, New Carrots, Watercress Salad and French Dressing, Rhubarb Shortcake, Coffee.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Rhubarb Shortcake—Make a regulation biscuit dough, doubling the amount of shortening and adding a tablespoon of sugar for each cup of flour used. Roll out, but do not generously add the rhubarb filling, place on the top portion and cover with whipped cream if desired, or a homemade marshmallow cream may be used.

Rhubarb Filling—Two teaspoons granulated gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, juice and grated rind of one-half orange, one pint red rhubarb, cut in small pieces, one cup sugar. Soak the gelatin in cold water to soften it. Cook the rhubarb with the sugar until sauce is thick. Add the softened gelatin and the juice and rind of the orange, beating the mixture well. When it is cold place it between the layers of the cake.

Marshmallow Cream—One cup of sugar, one-half cup of corn syrup, one-fourth cup hot water, one-third cup cold water, one tablespoon granulated gelatin, one egg white. Put sugar, corn syrup and hot water into sauce pan and stir until sugar is dissolved, bring to boiling point and boil without stirring to 238 degrees, or until it forms a soft ball when tried in cold water. Remove from fire, add the gelatin which has been soaked in cold water and beat mixture until it is white. Add egg white, beaten until stiff, and continue beating until thick and sticky. Use as a pudding sauce, cake filling and frosting or with chocolate or cocoa.

Fish Cakes—Take what is left of creamed salt codfish; add twice as much cooked potato and more salt (if needed) and pepper. Chop it up fine and mix until potato and fish are blended. Add more potato if too moist, an egg if too dry. Shape in small flat cakes, roll in flour, fry in hot fat.

SAVE GLASS RECEPTACLES

Save all small glass receptacles, such as those that honey and salad dressing come in, and during canning time fill them with various things. From magazines cut pretty colored fruits and vegetable and paste them on glasses for labels. This year's glass receptacles may have a ring of vegetables all around. One or more of these glasses with a tiny cake or some cookies are always welcome among your friends.

SUGGESTIONS

To Renovate Ceiling—The best interior decorators are using a plain cream-colored paper on the ceiling of most rooms, and as it is quite difficult for an amateur to attempt this, try the following plan:

Get a package of kalsomine or water color in the desired shade (pink is quite a nice color). Mix with water according to directions and apply over the old paper or the bare ceiling. If used over paper see that paper is free from dust first.

HEART AND HOME

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married six years. During this time I have been told three different times, and know it to be a fact, that my husband runs around with other women. The second time I caught up with him he owned up to everything, but this last time he says he does not run around, but I know he does.

Two weeks ago I got a letter from a person telling me about his running around, and in this letter there were things I knew he must have told some one or they would have been known. He denies the things I was told in this letter.

He has got into serious trouble several times and if it hadn't been for me he would have been in jail. I stayed with him through his trouble when no one else would.

I have a little girl five years old. I keep house nicely, get three meals a day and always have everything ready for him at home. I never go off and leave my little girl. I always keep her looking nice and take care of her.

He never says anything about what I buy or spend. I am twenty-three and he is fifteen years older than I am. He seems to be always here, but he is always getting into trouble of some kind and keeps company with a tough crowd. I have talked to him a lot and tried hard to get him to do the right thing, but he won't listen to me.

Do you advise me to quit him or not? I am too young to worry my life away over him.

MRS. G. E. S. It is a terrible thing when a woman has to resort to divorce. It seems to me it is more terrible thing to go on living with a man who is faithless if there is any way out of it. Unfortunately our laws do not really protect a woman who is compelled to leave her husband and to support herself and child. It is all very well to get a divorce and alimony, but only too often the man is able to dodge his obligation and get out of paying.

If you feel strong enough to make your way in life and to provide a good home for your child, it seems to me that you would be far happier away from your husband. But if you are not fitted to earn a living, you would only jump from the frying pan into the fire if you were to leave your husband.

BROWN EYES Consult a physician in regard to children. He will perhaps be able to make your desire possible.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me how to keep the charm of the good-luck ring. Does it have to be given to you, or do you buy it?

I am not familiar with the lore of the good-luck ring. If you know where to buy it, the salesman will be able to tell you the secret of its charm.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me how to place bread and butter plates, also salad, when served with the meal?

Bread and butter plates are placed above the service plates placed to the left with the butter spreader across the upper right-hand side of the plate with the blade turned toward the center of the plate. The salad when served with the main course is placed above the service plate slightly to the right.

Clothes Ruined—Mystery Solved

By GRACE BARTON

You know what causes those thin spots and little holes in your nearly new sheets, towels, napkins and tablecloths? Can you answer for waists and underwear that come from the wash looking frayed and gray?

Don't blame the goods nor the washer who washes. First find out whether your laundry soap has "flor" in it to make a little soap look like a large bar. Women who use ordinary white and yellow soap are often rubbed "flor" into their clothes instead of rubbing dirt out. This wears out the women and the clothes; besides it rots the fabric or cuts the threads, for much of the "flor" in laundry soap is made of the water glass which crystallizes when the clothes dry.

My advice is to ask your grocer for the GREEN ARROW, made by The Pottsville Co. It is probably the first home laundry bar containing olive oil combined with naphtha. And nothing makes clothes snowier and fresher than olive oil. This is why fabric makers wash with olive oil soap.

Have you never wondered why you couldn't get a laundry soap with olive oil when you knew it was so cleansing and softening and mild? Well, olive oil would be too expensive for laundry soap, except that The Pottsville Co. buys it in such large quantities and has also reduced the cost of manufacture.

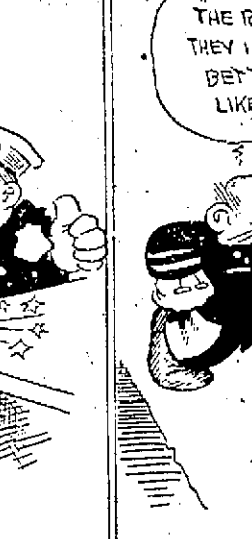

Being all soap, GREEN ARROW is all cleaning power and hence goes nearly twice as far as ordinary soap that is only part soap. And it never burns the hands. Advertisement.

Stories

CLAWS THAT REACHED FOR GRAPES

New, it seemed to Tinker Bob rather strange to think that the call of Spring was in his thoughts all the time. Strange or not strange he could not still his desire to return to the Great Forest. He decided not to tell Tink about it; for Tink was such a cry-baby anyway that Tinker knew it would bring tears to his eyes if he did mention it. But what might be going on in the forest,

Presently, as he stood watching the tree not far away, He could not see the creature itself but he knew there was one about or he would not see claws.

"I say who is that fellow I see?"

Tink turned about to see if there really was anyone near. Then he too, caught sight of the claws.

"Oh, Crump!" cried he, "That's a friend of mine. He dare not come out of the jungle in the daytime unless the sun is behind a cloud.

The sun is too hot for him, so he stays in the thicket during the day and comes out at night."

"My what long claws he has. He must be a terrible fellow to fight with," said Tink. Then he went closer and what do you suppose he saw? Well, he saw those claws reaching up after a large bunch of grapes that hung from one of the tangled vines. "Look, he is after those grapes."

He got the grapes too, and sat in the tree till he ate them. Then he went for more. "I don't see how he can get any grapes when he is so clumsy," said Tink. "He just stands up and falls down when he is on the ground. I have seen him try to get a drink during the dry season and nearly every time he goes to the river he falls in. I wouldn't want claws like that."

"What is his name?" asked

Tink.

"He is the Jungle Bear. No one talks to him very much for he stays in the hole in the ground most of the time," said Tink.

"Where does he find the hole to get into?"

"Oh my, he digs that hole with his claws, and it doesn't take him long to do it either," said Tink.

Then Tink saw him reach for another bunch of grapes. "He sure likes grapes," said he, as he watched Mr. Jungle Bear eating away at another large bunch of the jungle fruit.

Looking around he noticed first that the jungle was very thick, so thick that the sun could not shine thru. Then he saw some movements that were new to him. Tink didn't notice these movements at all, perhaps he was so familiar with them that he gave them little attention.

"He is the Jungle Bear. No one talks to him very much for he stays in the hole in the ground most of the time," said Tink.

"Where does he find the hole to get into?"

"Oh my, he digs that hole with his claws, and it doesn't take him long to do it either," said Tink.

Then Tink saw him reach for another bunch of grapes. "He sure likes grapes," said he, as he watched Mr. Jungle Bear eating away at another large bunch of the jungle fruit.

Looking around he noticed first that the jungle was very thick, so thick that the sun could not shine thru. Then he saw some movements that were new to him. Tink didn't notice these movements at all, perhaps he was so familiar with them that he gave them little attention.

"What is that I see in the midst of the thick jungle?" asked Tink.

In the dim light he could see claws that looked to be three or four inches long. They were in the tree or among the vines that hung in the tree not far away, He could not see the creature itself but he knew there was one about or he would not see claws.

"I say who is that fellow I see?" Tink turned about to see if there really was anyone near. Then he too, caught sight of the claws.

"Oh, Crump!" cried he, "That's a friend of mine. He dare not come out of the jungle in the daytime unless the sun is behind a cloud.

The sun is too hot for him, so he stays in the thicket during the day and comes out at night."

"My what long claws he has. He must be a terrible fellow to fight with," said Tink. Then he went closer and what do you suppose he saw? Well, he saw those claws reaching up after a large bunch of grapes that hung from one of the tangled vines. "Look, he is after those grapes."

He got the grapes too, and sat in the tree till he ate them. Then he went for more. "I don't see how he can get any grapes when he is so clumsy," said Tink. "He just stands up and falls down when he is on the ground. I have seen him try to get a drink during the dry season and nearly every time he goes to the river he falls in. I wouldn't want claws like that."

"What is his name?" asked Tink.

OSHKOSHBLACKSMITH MARVELS OVER RELIEF

"It's Actually Almost Unbelievable That Anything Could Help Me As Much As Trutona Really Has," He Declares

"It just seems that Trutona was especially designed for my particular case and I'm frank to say that it's almost unbelievable that anything could help me as much as Trutona really has in the past two weeks," was the remarkable statement made a few days by Samuel Patterson, well-known Oshkosh blacksmith, residing at 12 School street.

"For several years my kidneys had troubled me and for some time I'd suffered severe pains in my abdomen," he said. "My appetite wasn't right either, as I didn't eat heartily as a working man like me should have. Well, sir, I'm convinced now that a dollar invested in this great medicine Trutona will pay anyone 100 per cent dividend in relief. Why I really haven't noticed that former severe pain in my stomach at all for several days and before that one dose of Trutona always immediately relieved the pain when it came. It sure is wonderful to be relieved of my chronic constipation, too."

Oshkosh, Appleton and residents of scores of other Wisconsin cities are praising Trutona just as hundreds of Janesville people have paid highest tribute to the merit of this great preparation. Countless Janesville residents are now using Trutona as a Spring tonic, building up their systems weakened and run-down by the inclement weather of winter. Trutona is sold and highly recommended in Janesville at the Oshkosh Drug Store; Evansville, Pioneer Drug Store; Edgerton, Atwell-Dallman's; Milton, Stevens' and all good druggists in surrounding towns.

Speaks Before Newark
Farm Bureau.

County wide testing for bovine tuberculosis has been given great impetus in Rock county until it is forecasted that in 1923 Rock county will be the first southern Wisconsin district to be placed on the federal accredited list. Applications have been filed for the testing of more than 200 herds and petitions being signed for the county-wide testing.

Right now the state and federal authorities are putting on the brakes in cattle testing because of a decided shortage in indemnity funds. Testing continues in Rock county at the rate of 50 and 60 herds a month under the direction of Dr. Arthur Kilians, Janesville, but the herds having the test are carefully selected to avoid heavy losses.

The importance of the tuberculosis testing of stock was brought out during a Farm Bureau meeting held in Newark township on Wednesday night.

Dr. Healey, speaker of the federal and state testing work, explained the need of the testing from the standpoint of better health for humans, for stock and the business necessity of having tested cattle.

"When buyers come to a county now for stock they ask two questions—has the herd been T. B. tested and has the stock production records," stated Dr. Healey. "These two tests are becoming the basis of all important stock sales."

There have been returns to the state for this testing work, for no state has sold as many cattle for as good prices as has Wisconsin for the one reason, Wisconsin leads the United States in the number of tested herds. The fact that Wisconsin has more accredited herds has in turn meant an increased demand for Wisconsin dairy products.

Importance in Sales.

"There is no greater policy for the farmer to follow than to sell stock to the county-wide test. You may have better cattle than any other county, but the county having the most tested herds is getting the cream of the best stock in the state and it is a big business right now. The only protection that the stock breeders have from the menace of tuberculosis is the test. There is no insurance or cure. The losses from diseased stock in the packing centers is charged up against all healthy stock and in the end the farmer pays the bill. He absorbs the losses in the end."

The danger of bovine tuberculosis affecting humans was explained. Cases were cited where many had been diseased from drinking unhealthful milk not pasteurized so that county-wide testing had an important humane standpoint.

Until indemnity funds are increased, the state is not seeking to stimulate herd testing in the manner to lay a foundation for a county-wide test in 1923 when the county will be in a good position for the eradication work on a big scale. Dr. Healey urged laws against the sale of untested stock at auctions.

"There is nothing more important than the heritage of good health for children," declared Dr. Healey, superintendent of the schools.

Farm Bureau Work.

George Hull, president of the Rock County Farm Bureau, spoke on the Farm Bureau organization work and noted the effectiveness of the agriculture bloc.

Dr. Arthur Kilians also gave a short speech urging interest in cattle testing and better stock.

There were 30 attending the meeting. Henry Wiland, Jr., was chairman. The Newark Farm Bureau and the Rural Advancement club will combine for a tour of Rock county. The township will also hold their annual picnic this spring.

Government by Both Sexes Is Aster Appeal

New York—Lady Astor, who will attend the dinner of the English Speaking Union Thursday night, will not go to Baltimore immediately afterward, as originally planned. She will spend the time with her sister, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson.

Town hall was packed Wednesday night by men and women who cheerfully listened to the speech of the famous lawyer who urged her fellow citizens to "be up and doing" in the world. Her husband was blamed for starting her "on this downward career from home to the divorcee," because Lord Astor, a philanthropist, who had worked in Plymouth for 11 years to aid the people, finally decided changes in the laws were necessary to change conditions.

A government by both sexes was the ideal Astor strove for, said Lady Astor, who declared that only through such a government could such a government, could children, home and society get a better world in which to exist.

RURAL CARRIERS TO GATHER CROP DATA

(By Associated Press.)
Washington.—Utilization of the services of rural letter carriers for gathering crop data and other agricultural statistics was authorized Thursday by Postmaster General Work.

"The whole department realizes," the postmaster general said, "that the services the rural carriers could render would be of tremendous value to agricultural interests of the country."

It is understood that the filling out of the report blanks required but a few moments each month.

PETITIONS URGE ALDERMANIC FORM

(By Gazette Correspondent.)

South Beloit.—Changing the high-handed methods and inefficiency on the part of the South Beloit commission, a petition is being circulated demanding a recall in favor of aldermanic government. A meeting was held Tuesday night when 40 names were secured. The law requires that one fourth of the total vote at the last municipal election must sign the petition. This means 112. The election may take place within 60 days after filing of the petition.

Neither stream is a government one.

GREEN COUNTY MAY CONSIDER 3-COUNTY SANATORIUM PLAN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Monroe.—A special session of the Green county board is likely soon. It is believed, to consider the invitation of Rock county to join with it and Walworth county in the construction of a tri-county tuberculosis sanatorium, and to make an amendment to the highway improvement program adopted last November. The highway construction program at that time was cut down because of the high cost and it was decided that gravel or some cheaper substitute for concrete would serve. Ex-

The College of Saint Teresa, of Winona, Minn., has offered a college scholarship to Janesville high school to be awarded to one of the "honors" girls in the 1922 graduating class. The scholarship covers the full amount of the tuition for the college year, valued at $150 for the present, and may be renewed for the remaining three years at college provided the young woman continues to maintain a marked high rank in her work.

Similar scholarships are being offered to a selected number of Wisconsin high schools on the accredited list of the North Central association.

Local Volley Men Play Milwaukee, Saturday, State Meet

8 TEAMS ENTERED IN FIRST TOURNEY OF KIND IN STATE

For the first time in the history of sports in this city, a local volleyball team will take part in a tournament. This will occur Saturday when a picked group from the Janesville Y. M. C. A. competes in the first state volleyball meet which will be held at Madison.

Teams from Milwaukee, Madison, Racine, Appleton, Eau Claire and Fond du Lac will compete at the city Y. M. C. A. In the drawings, the lower city is to meet Milwaukee. The games are set as follows:

1-2 p. m.—Wausau vs. Madison.
2-3 p. m.—Janesville vs. Milwaukee.
3-4 p. m.—Eau Claire vs. Fond du Lac.
4-5 p. m.—Racine vs. Appleton.
5-6 p. m.—Semi-finals, winners 1-2.
6-7 p. m.—Semi-finals, winners 3-4.
8-9 p. m.—Finals.

The personnel of the Janesville squad has not yet been decided. Eight men have been tentatively picked but only six will go. The team members will be announced later.

Winners of the state championship will receive a trophy cup to be held for one year. Individual medals will be awarded members of the title team.

A banquet will be held at 6:30 p. m. D. E. Robinson, Chicago, will talk on the possibilities of volunteer work in the Y. M. C. A.

According to a report emanating from Monroe, Rex Rickard is said to have offered the Badgers of that city $1,500 to play the New York Celtics at Detroit. Monroe turned the proposition down when Rickard is claimed to have put up a plan of each team paying its own expenses, the winner to take all net profits. No one will blame Monroe.

George Herbstreich, infielder of the Edgerton Highway Trailers, has signed with Green Bay. The Tobacco city players certainly are losing no time getting in line with other teams following the announcement Edgerton is not to have a team this season.

Frankie Butera, former skating manager of the Coliseum rink here, challenges the winner of the Johnson-Goggin scrap at Kenosha Friday. Two years ago Butera met Goggin when a blow on the arm put him out of the battle.

Green Bay has dropped out of the Central Wisconsin professional basketball league. This is a decided loss to that circuit, the Hawks being one of the mainstays during the past successful season.

Every fisherman in this part of the state should take active interest in the prize offers of Fremo Brothers for the largest pike, pickerel and bass. By the way, the bass season opens June 1. The trout season opens May 1.

Harold C. Plante, Appleton, who won the state pocket billiard championship from Fred Zanders of Beloit, will play in the national tournament next fall. This is a consolation to the efforts of the Wisconsin billiard association, formed during the past year.

The Kenosha horseshoe club opens its season Sunday.

The Beloit Fairies play the Simmons Fed company at the Gateway city Saturday and Sunday.

Star Gridder Joins Monroe High Outfit

High school football teams that meet here on the gridiron next season will have to watch their step. The Green county school has just announced the addition of Earl Hagemann, rated as one of the best "prep" school grid stars in Illinois.

Hagemann is 175 pounds. He played right tackle for the Illinois championship Elgin team last year. In 1920, he was with the Elgin squad that held Stamford, Conn., in the New England town, to 7-0. After Ansonia beat Stamford for the New England title, Elgin held that team to 13-0.

Monroe has big plans for its 1922 squad.

FINAL BRIDGE MATCH SET IN R-K LEAGUE

The final bridge match between the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs will be held at the Colonial club next Wednesday. A dinner at 6:30 will precede the games. Rotary now is in the lead.

U. S. UP AGAINST IMMENSE DEFICIT

President May Address Congress in Effort to Check Spending.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright, 1922, by The Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—Government finances are in the worst jam they have been in since the war. Secretary Mellon estimates the total deficit for the fiscal year beginning July next at nearly a half billion dollars. Congress is on the verge of passing a soldier compensation bill which will add as much as $1,000,000,000 to the deficit.

Under these circumstances, Mr. Harding's only chance to prevent the passage of the house bill or any other measure which further drains the treasury lies in a message setting forth the financial situation explicitly. It is feared that Mr. Harding will have to state publicly that the administration faces a half billion dollar deficit and that the economy program started out so auspiciously with director Dawes has failed to balance the budget for 1923.

Mr. Mellon, however, has already disclosed the painful facts so that from a political viewpoint, Mr. Harding will not be able to erase the impression thus far made by the announcement of a half billion dollar deficit. Unless Mr. Harding is able to exercise further control over his party in the senate, the chances are that the deficit for 1923 will grow larger. So the executive is compelled by circumstances to call a halt toward further expenditures.

In many respects the fight that is in prospect looks as if it will bring the turning point in the Harding administration. The president has not given vent to his feelings over the continued indifference of congress to his expressed wishes. He and his cabinet had to fight hard to overthrow a naval committee's recommendation in the house last week and the executive is being encouraged to use his influence even further to secure congressional acquiescence in his viewpoint.

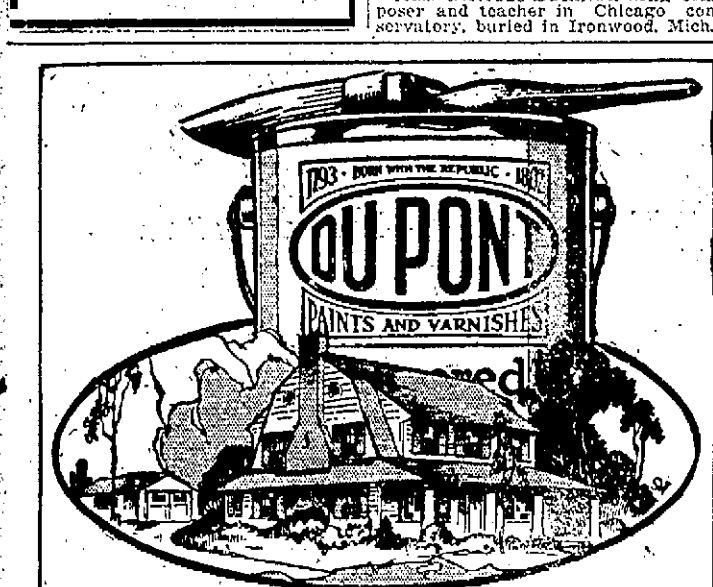

Expect Harding Surrender.
Curiously enough most members of congress expect Mr. Harding to surrender them on the bonus issue and they insist that defeat or no defeat, he will have to sign the bonus bill or see it passed by a two-thirds vote over his veto.

Mr. Harding has not made public the strategy he will adopt. One point however is clear. The plan to sidetrack the tariff and take up the bonus issue doesn't have his approval. He believes the tariff pledge should be redeemed before anything else is done as there has been so much delay. The tariff problem is complicated on every side. It looks like a prolonged debate. The supporters of the bonus are impatient. The first skirmish will come over giving the bonus bill right of way over the tariff. If defeated in that, the supporters of the bonus will merely renew their fight when the tariff is out of the way. The statement of the government's fiscal situation is counted upon meanwhile to prevent precipitate action.

Millions of Deficit.
For the moment, Secretary Mellon's announcement that even with the $200,000,000 payment of interest on the British war debt to the United States there would be a gross deficit of $484,000,000 has given members of congress supporting the bonus their biggest surprise. They had counted on paying the bonus out of British funds. Although it is too early to say what the ultimate fate of the bonus will be, the chances are the 1924 budget will be smaller than 1923 and if the services men are defeated at this session they will surely win out before the presidential campaign of 1924.

GOVERNOR NAMES MAY 5 ARBOR DAY

Schools Expected to Promote Tree Planting and Wild Life Preservation.

Madison.—Arbor and Bird day was set aside Wednesday by Gov. J. J. Blaine in a proclamation as Friday, May 5, when all schools, colleges and other institutions will be expected to promote the planting of trees, the beautifying of parks, roadways and public grounds, and the preservation of wild life.

Gov. Blaine, in a supplementary statement, says the proclamation of President Harding which names April 22 as Arbor day cannot be complied with in Wisconsin, inasmuch as it is too early for the greater portion of the state for practical observance. The proclamation of Governor Blaine follows:

"Whereas, it is provided by law that the governor by proclamation shall set apart one day each year to be designated as Arbor and Bird day, and

"Whereas, it has become customary to set apart the first Friday in May as a suitable time for the observance of said day by schools, colleges and other institutions, and

Car Stolen on Jackson Street

A 1921 Ford touring car owned by Robert F. Lester, employee of Dedrick brothers grocery, was stolen from South Jackson street Tuesday night while he was attending the Apollo theater. The car bore license number 23-304. Police in other cities have been notified by Chief Charles Newman.

Editor Gazette:

It begins to look now as if there were no way to stop reckless driving by motorists, especially in turning street corners in the busy parts of the city, and endangering the lives of every one, whether on foot or driving a horse.

I was the unfortunate one this time. Last Saturday, about 2:30 p. m., I was driving west on Milwaukee street to South River street when a street car stopped to discharge passengers, and I stopped at the same time. As soon as the car started up I undertook to go ahead and go to South River street when a truck rammed in between car and horse, and not having room enough, caught on to horse and broke his front ankle, causing him to be shot to end his misery.

Boilers Arrive for New School

Representatives of the American Heating and Plumbing company, Superior, contractors for the heating work on the new high school have arrived here and are unloading boiler and other material from freight cars and transporting it to the building. It is expected they will have six or eight men here at the end of the week and start some of the work necessary to be completed before other work of the general contract can go ahead. Inclement weather is hampering the progress on the brick laying considerably. It had been hoped to complete it by May 1.

TO RED CROSS MEET.

Miss Hattie L. Alden will go to Milwaukee on Thursday to attend a meeting of the Red Cross chapter secretaries of this district. The chapter office in the postoffice will therefore be closed.

EDGERTON MAYOR REVIEWS REGIME

Concrete Street Work and Purchase of Park Land Features.

Edgerton — A review of the accomplishments of Edgerton in municipal improvements during the four years of service of Joseph J. Leary as mayor is given in a statement issued by him as the time for turning over the reins to C. G. Blodgett, mayor elect, arrives.

One and one half miles of concrete street, curb and gutter, have been laid; two miles of sanitary sewer have been constructed; one and one half miles of water mains have been laid and one half mile of storm sewer has been constructed.

Concrete street, curb and gutter was laid on West and East Fulton, North Main, Swift, First, Second and Rollin streets and Albion road; sanitary sewer on Stoughton road, from Rollin to W. Fulton, Albion to Victoria Rd., Victoria, Doty, Chamberlain, Lawton, High, Jensen and Perry streets and Newville roads; water mains on cross over from Newville road to E. Fulton street, Doty, Chamberlain to Blaine connecting with a dead end, Stoughton Jct. Stoughton road to athletic park and York road; storm sewer on the following streets, Swift, from Rollin and Swift to Saunders Creek; Victoria Rd. from York Rd. to Saunders Creek; and E. Fulton st. from York Rd. to Saunders Creek.

Buy Park Lands

The first steps were taken during Mayor Leary's administration to give Edgerton two of the most beautiful parks in Southern Wisconsin when land was purchased for Central and Athletic park on which improvements have been made.

Cameron electric pump, with a 1000 gallon per minute capacity was purchased and installed and is now furnishing Edgerton with all the water that is consumed. A standard motor driven fire truck, combination chemical pump and hose body for the fire department was purchased.

Edgerton entertained last October the most prominent city officials in Wisconsin joining with Janesville in entertaining the Wisconsin League of Municipalities.

"It is with feelings of regret mingled with pleasure that my term of office expires," said Mayor Leary. "I regret because of my association with men who are straightforward in their dealings, men who are on the square."

"We have studied the problems of this 4,700,000 corporation, we have given our time and our best thought to carrying on the improvements that we believed were for the best interest of our City. No doubt, we have made mistakes. But I am not infallible and just so long as I must plan and do work there will be mistakes."

Co-operation Praised

"There is another reason why I regret leaving you. There is a certain fascination that goes with public office. There are the kind words spoken of the officials and there are also the kicks. Don't forget the kicks. One of my friends who held public office in this city some years ago, told me that after he retired from office he was lonesome at times on account of not receiving any compliments."

"On the other hand it is a pleasure to me to know that I am through. There is an indescribable feeling of relief. It seems as if I had shifted my part of a heavy load to someone else and I feel free."

"It is a pleasure to remember how we all worked together, mayor, aldermen and city attorney, to put through some enterprise that we thought would be beneficial to the city and it is a pleasure to feel that you will continue to work together and when you have obtained some good results the public for whom you are working will thank you for your efforts."

"This may not come at once, as the American people must be shown; however, have a little patience and you will be rewarded for the waiting."

TWO WOMEN POLICE MAGISTRATES NAMED

New York—Judge Cardozo of the court of appeals Wednesday granted a certificate of reasonable doubt in the cases of Isaac E. Ferguson, former Chicago lawyer, and Charles E. Ruthenberg, once socialist candidate for governor of Ohio, convicted of criminal anarchy in 1920.

The court ordered their release from Sing Sing prison on bail pending the filing of an appeal from their conviction.

JUSTICE LEFT AT POST WHEN ABSENT MINDED PROF. WEDS

Chicago.—Flowers that would have graced the wedding of Prof. Joseph C. Beck of Milwaukee have withered and the new silk hat of Justice of the Peace Max Witkower, Evanston, has been put away awaiting a state occasion.

Justice Witkower was to have performed the wedding ceremony last Sunday for Prof. Beck, but the bridegroom failed to appear.

An investigation was started early Wednesday. The professor was located at his home in Milwaukee. He explained he recently came to Chicago and was married to Miss Nell Shipman and, in the flurry of the honeymoon, completely forgot he had engaged Justice Witkower.

The professor is a member of the faculty at the Marquette School of Medicine.

Believe Many Killed in Big Serbian Blast

Belgrade, Jugoslavia.—A terrific explosion occurred Wednesday at Monastir, in the southern part of Old Serbia, when an ammunition dump blew up. The railroad station was destroyed and enormous damage otherwise done by the blast.

The number of killed and wounded, says the dispatch from Monastir, is unknown.

Mother Suicide After Killing Two Children

Columbia, Ky.—Mrs. Arnold Holt died Wednesday of injuries she inflicted Tuesday after killing two of her children while suffering from dementia. She slew her eight-year-old daughter with a butcher knife and drowned her three-month-old infant in a rain barrel, then inflicted fatal injuries to herself by hitting her head against a hatchet blade.

TRY NEW PLAN FOR RAISING BAND FUND

2,000 Tickets at $1 for Pavement Dance to be Mailed Next Week.

Two thousand letters will be mailed out next week by the Bower City band in an effort to raise $1,200 by popular subscription which, added to the $800 voted by the city council, will make up the budget of $2,000 adopted by the band in order to provide regular concerts all summer.

Enclosed in each letter will be a ticket to the band's community pavement dance to be given on North Jackson street, June 6, and also an envelope for the return of money to the treasurer of the band, George W. Muenchow. A price of $1 has been fixed for each ticket, although those who can are urged to pay a little more, as the purchase of a ticket also constitutes a subscription for the support of the band throughout the season.

Plan is Open to All

"Rather than go out with subscription lists in an effort to raise money from a few, we have picked out this plan as giving all a chance to help along the band," said City Clerk J. J. Sartell, chairman of the finance committee of the band, Thursday. "It is the city's band and we believe everybody will get behind and push. We anticipate a big return from this way of selling the tickets."

Under this plan, citizens will be giving their money with the feeling they are going to get something for it.

Those not keeping the tickets are asked to return them. Each of the 2,000 will be numbered and a record kept by the band.

Great Year Predicted

With the band the largest in years, members are looking forward to a banner season. Regular weekly rehearsals have been held all winter and under leadership of the new director, Burr W. Tolles, steady improvement has been seen.

The new plan for raising money has the sanction of the Community Music committee. If enough is realized through the sale of tickets, it may be possible to put on regular concerts

GREY WOLF ASKS MORE RIGHTS FOR AMERICAN INDIAN

Consideration of the rights of the Indian, the real Americans, whom he said has less opportunity for citizenship rights than foreigners, was asked by C. E. Babbitt, named Grey Wolf by the Indians, speaking at the Presbyterian church Tuesday night under the auspices of the Westminster society.

Tracing the history of the only true Americans, Grey Wolf, showed how in the progress of Americans they had been gradually pushed westward until they are now confined to small areas of reservation. He told of the injustice of making the Indian live on the reservations for 25 years before they can become citizens of the United States, and the need for revolutionary changes in the educational system on the reservations.

Grey Wolf closed singing, "America" in the Indian tongue, reciting a poem written by himself and darning the Indian scalp dance.

He has signed for a chautauqua circuit. He is visiting here at the home of his sister.

BEET SUGAR BULK DROPS DURING 1921

Washington.—Beet sugar production for 1921 amounted to 1,020,483 short tons, Secretary Wallace announced Thursday, adding this amount was 68,332 tons less than the production of 1920.

Farmers received $48,151,000 for the 7,722,000 tons of the sugar beet crop for 1921, which offered an average of $6.22 per acre and $6.32 per ton, and the price per ton was said to be as low as in 1916.

Sixty-two factories were in operation for 75 days on the average. It was said, and the fraction of sucrose actually extracted was 13.75 per cent weight of the beet, as compared with an average of 13.55 per cent for the year 1915-1920.
